PEASANT ARMY HEMMED IN BY STATE TROOPS

Prudently fighting back the tears which threatened to spoil her beautiful complexion, Madame Lupescu declared: "My heart is with the people of Rumania and what is best for them is best for me. I believe the people of Rumania want Prince Carol back, and if that means we have to part I am willing. If it means we are never to see each other again I am still willing."

"I love my country enough not to put any personal obstacle in the way."

"What's the use of going to prison?" he asked in high pitched voice. "There's nothing to look forward to."

Judge Gray fixed Saturday, May 12, for sentence. He announced, however, that if he decided that Hearnesberger should hang, he would give the prisoner a trial notwithstanding his plea of guilty. He was accused of the brutal slaying of Mrs. Ruby Black, Oakland dance hall girl on the night of April 11. The woman was beaten over the head with a soda bottle and then choked to death.

THE NEW MAY DAY

President Coolidge has the right idea about May Day.

He wants it dedicated to the welfare of youthful Americans.

May Day has always been one of the year's most entrancing festivals for children.

From the earliest days of our present civilization this day has been the occasion for outdoor games and processions.

The erection of the Maypole on the old village green was once greeted with the same joyous enthusiasm that accompanies the night before Christmas and its pleasant custom of bestowing and receiving gifts.

Of late, this one-time children's festival has lost its original zest.

Malcontents of every stripe have used it as the day on which to express their displeasure at the existing order of things.

It is quite in order for people to hold their own ideas and to give expression to them in such ways as will not disrupt the government under which they are living.

It is completely out of order to take for this purpose the one day of all the 365 days in the year that had been dedicated to the outdoor activities of youth.

For that reason, loyal Americans will give hearty welcome to the recommendation of the President that this day be set aside for the high purpose of childhood's health.

He points out, truthfully, that the welfare and progress of the nation depend upon sturdy children.

His suggestion that the American people unite in furtherance of child health building, and hold such exercises as will emphasize the necessity for an all-year program, is one that should be adopted with unanimous accord.

We have heard much about a "safe and sane Fourth of July," and good work has been done to eliminate the ghastly toll of fatalities that formerly marked the celebration of our national holiday.

But, after all, the move for safety and sanity was purely a negative one. For while it provided the same safety for childhood that is afforded on other days, it did not add anything constructively to child development.

This new suggestion for May Day observance fills that gap.

To further the program that has been launched it is to be hoped that parents' associations, women's clubs, and the like, will follow the example of the American Child Health Association and other institutions that have dedicated themselves to this highly important public service.

Since the advent of the short skirt, merchants are having to sweep in front of their stores at least three times a day.—Florida Times-Union.

Elsie Janis, sweet heart of the A.E.F. ten years ago, is still lending her smile and interest for the welfare of her thousands of dough boy friends. She is shown here with Captain R. B. Handy, Jr., national chairman of the 1928 Buddy Poppy distribution by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. Captain Handy, adjutant general in charge of national headquarters, Kansas City, Kansas, extended to Miss Janis the privilege of buying of the first 1928 Buddy Poppy.

Affairs of the Heart and Your Marriage Problems

Patricia Lee answers questions relating to problems of married life. Names and address should be added to letters as a mark of good faith but will not be published. Readers who desire private answers should enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of typing, etc. Because of space limitations it is not possible to print answers to all letters received, and readers who wish an early reply should take advantage of this special service. On account of the large quantity of mail coming to this department, about ten days should be allowed for a reply. Write to Patricia Lee, care of this paper.

Dear Patricia Lee—

I have been watching your column in this paper for quite a while and the advice you give to all is wonderful in its simplicity and sound reasoning. At dinner yesterday at a hotel a cynical bachelor of about my age (49) remarked that a man after reaching 40 years of age wasn't capable of the intense, emotional love of a young man of 20 or 25. I contend that the reverse is true, for I have loved in the past year with an intensity that I was not capable of as a young man; in fact, it was all-absorbing. But the woman in the case has decided that her love for me has deteriorated to a poor sort of love, whereas I know she did love me intensely less than a year ago. I am just making a statement, and not asking for advice, for I realize that "dead love is the dearest thing in the world," and when it dies there is nothing to do but accept the inevitable.—W. E. P.

Dear Sir:—Your letter is most interesting in view of the opinions now being expressed by our readers on the question whether love ends for a man after 30. I think the argument you had with the "cynical bachelor" was indicative of the different types you are. Many men are just as emotional and intense in their last love affair as in their first; it depends on the man, not on his age. You are one of the fortunate men who do not lose vitality, but who are capable of keeping young mentally and physically for an indefinite number of years. You are wise to break off an affair that is slowly dying. I have said in my column, and I firmly believe, there is no such thing as "one-sided" love. It must be reciprocated.

My nephew, aged 3, remarked on seeing his infant sister being washed: "Mother, put me on the scale and see what time it is."

How To Earn Money!

Having been out of work for several months, I would appreciate any advice given to me on the best way of getting work to do at home. I've been in the tailoring business all my life. Do you think having an apartment on the top floor is an handicap? I'd prefer not to move.—L. P.

Since you live in an apartment it is really best to try to work up your own business, because you would need a permit to do any kind of factory work. I would suggest first, that you send out cards to the people in your immediate neighborhood and follow this up by a house-to-house canvass for work. If your landlord has no objection, put a sign in your window and, if possible cut prices a little until you get a start.

I am interested in starting a circulating library. Can you advise me how to go about it, and about what the expense will be?—J. S.

Start a club which would require 1¢ to join, this to be refunded at any time the person cares to withdraw. This will give you some capital and enable you to keep buying the newest books for renting out. I think the usual charge is 25 cent per week and 5 cents for each additional day overtime.

Vigorous Health

RESTAURANT MEALS

Those who are wise enough to give attention to their diet are constantly confronted with the right kind of foods, especially simple ones and women, who have to eat in restaurants and boarding houses.

Unfortunately, many married couples also eat in restaurants instead of preparing their own meals, sacrificing their health to their convenience.

It is sad but true that very few restaurants supply natural foods prepared in the proper manner. In the larger cities there are a few health restaurants, but the great majority of towns have none. The way to solve the restaurant problem is to eat two meals a day of mostly raw foods which require little preparation, so that it is not necessary to go to a restaurant. This leaves only one meal to select from the orthodox menu. A salad should always be selected and whole wheat bread should be asked for. If a vegetable dinner is served this is generally fairly satisfactory. Eggs and cheese can usually be obtained instead of meat. If necessary to order meat nothing else should be taken but a combination salad and fruit dessert. It is unwise to secure a cereal coffee plain water will suffice. With small meals buttermilk may be used. Fruits and puddings are generally the best desserts. If one is really in earnest it is generally possible to obtain a fairly satisfactory meal.

What is the cause and cure for a neuritis tingling which I have in the forefinger and thumb of my right hand? Could this be due to carrying a heavy bag every day?—M. G. H.

It is possible that carrying the heavy bag has brought about a slight spinal curvature or a spinal subluxation which is interfering with the nerve and blood supply to the hand. In this case spinal manipulation would be the treatment indicated. Of course it is always advisable to give attention to proper diet, moderate exercise, deep breathing and all general health building measures.

I have been suffering the last six months with gastric toxemia which has spread all through me. Doctors do not help. Is there really a cure?

I presume you refer to auto-intoxication. Doctors may not help but nature will. There certainly is a cure. The usual natural one would be a fast or at least an orange diet for up to seven days with daily "enemas," followed by the milk and orange diet together with graduated exercise, deep breathing of fresh air, cool baths and plenty of sleep.

Already the shops are showing delightfully clever accessories for the beach. An amusing bag made of colored rubber is in the form of a cunning little bull dog. It has space for the bathing suit, etc., and there's an inner compartment to hold cigarettes, matches and powder.

DADDY DUSK

It was always an honor to be the first of the Morton youngsters to step foot in Grandfather Benson's deserted old farm house each spring, and to the one who had found the first daffodil came this honor. This year it was Twinnie and Joe back of her she marched up on the old porch, stepping gingerly over the rotten front step which had broken down three years before, and being sure that none of the porch boards were ready to fall through to the cellar.

"I, Twinnie, do hereby open Grandfather Benson's house for the coming summer," she said with an air of great importance. "Milk, hand me the key to our domain."

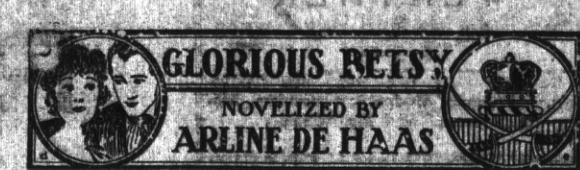

With great ceremony Joe pulled out of his pocket the huge brass key that for over a hundred years had fitted the rusty old lock of the Benson homestead. He bowed low in mock humility as he handed it to Twinnie.

With equal ceremony she put it in the lock.

"I hereby open," she started to say, as they had said each spring, and then she turned to the others, her eyes wide.

"Why the door's unlocked!" she said.

A new sports bag is made of plaid striped flannel. It appears in envelope, back-strap and pouch effects, and boasts fastenings of maroon and simulated semi-precious stones.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Gloria Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

at Springs Inn is the scene of an early morning duel over a picture of Betsy Patterson. Her handsome French tutor, La Vert, has just died, and the handsome young Frenchman, who had been given it to him, is standing in the woods. La Vert meets Betsy, who has been reading in the stream in a dare. He is silent while she hides him for his lack of ambition. Betsy, laughing, overcomes her father's wrath at her behavior. She is surrounded by eager admirers when La Vert arrives for her French lesson.

"No, I must leave you," Betsy dropped a courtesy and began to move towards the tutor. "I shall leave you, however, in care of Cousin Mary. She will entertain you until I return." She drew Mary forward, her arm about her cousin's waist. Mary smiled shyly, and the men bowed. But their eyes were for Betsy, and they watched her every movement as she walked over to La Vert and spoke to him.

"I am ready, now," she smiled, and then turned to pick up a French book from the table. "Where shall we have the lesson this morning? In your parlor?"

"I suppose so," Betsy moved towards the open window. "It's the one place there is not a crowd. It is a quiet place, and it is a place where you can study alone at any time." La Vert put in moodily.

"Oh, my goodness, now you're in a temper again. Go right on being angry, I like it," Betsy giggled.

"I am vexed," Dufrance began, "pleased with something I do," he retorted, preparing to follow Betsy through the window. "I seem to be unable." His voice broke off suddenly, and he stared out into the garden. "What a beautiful view!" he exclaimed, his eyes fixed on a picture of that place of the great estate in his honor. The low, Colonial building of Independence Hall, lighted and sparkling with life. The flag of France and the United States crested over a pillared entrance. Horsemasters stood on the balcony, their brilliant array of bejeweled society beauties. The prominent office-holders and their wives receiving. Two horsemen—a coach following. The arrival of the Republic of France. Captain Jerome Bonaparte! St. Pierre throwing open the door of the coach. "My! He laughed again.

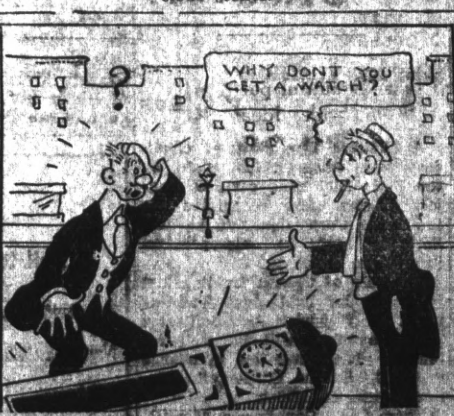

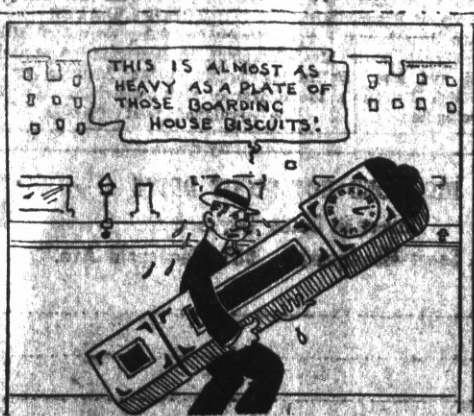

"You are to return with us at once, Sir," Dufrance called the wandering mind of his charge back to the present scene.

"Yes, yes, my good Dufrance," Jerome smiled. "I promise I will go back with you to that tiresome Philadelphia. But after one more week here at the Springs," he amended. "Just one more week with my beautiful pupil, Mistress Betsy Patterson. You must swear to preserve my incognito for that time. For one more week let me be simply Monsieur La Vert, the French tutor."

"I regret to say that it is impossible," Dufrance said. "St. Pierre explained hastily. 'We do not go to Philadelphia but to Baltimore, now. There is a fête arranged there in your honor.'"

"But Mistress Betsy! I have promised her to go to Philadelphia. Have you forgotten, monsieur, that Napoleon has made a picture of marriage for you with the family of Her Highness, the Princess Frederica of Wurtemberg?" Dufrance demanded. "How shall the Court of Wurtemberg receive the new of your indifference?"

"Oh, to the devil with the Court of Wurtemberg!" Jerome laughed, refusing to be impressed with the seriousness of the occasion. (To be continued.)

CLASSIC IS PORTRAYED ON SCREEN HERE

Helen Hunt Jackson's story, "Ramona," which comes to the California Theatre beginning tomorrow is regarded as one of the present day American classics. When Mrs. Jackson decided to write "Ramona" she had a deliberate purpose and as high an aim as that associated in the writing of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." She did not realize that her story would prove one of our most interesting romances.

It was the writer's motive to bring the treatment toward the Indians by the Americans, before Congress in the hope that Congress would enact just laws. That was Mrs. Jackson's whole desire.

Before "Ramona" recalled the Indian plight in fiction form, she had written "A Century of Dishonor" in which was an account of the United States government's dealing with the Indian tribes that had widespread influence.

Being a plain, cold statement of facts, with copies of evidence to bear it out, "A Century of Dishonor" was really an indictment of the Government for its failure to keep its promise with the Red man from early times down to the date of the publication of the book, 1880.

It was later that Mrs. Jackson became convinced that public sympathy on behalf of the Mission Indians of California, could be awakened if revealed in story form; hence her novel with a happy ending.

"Ramona" would never have reached a 94th printing had it not possessed unusual literary qualities for public interest in the Indian question alone could never have kept the book alive. As it is, "Ramona" is regarded as one of the American classics.

Today the book enjoys its largest sale and now comes the film that will give it perpetual life on the silver screen. Inspiration Pictures and Edwin Carewe produced the story with Dolores Del Rio in the star and title role. It is regarded as one of the important pictures for the new year and a vehicle entirely suited to the star's histrionic talents.

Other features include "In the U. S.," "African Adventures," and current news events.

BOXER WARFARE IS THEME FOR P. KYNE STORY

Those who thrilled at the Chinese intrigue in Lon Chaney's "Mr. Wu" are to have another glimpse into the cunning of the Orient. This time it will be Tim McCoy, Metro-Goldwyn Mayer historical star, who will reveal the intrigue of the Manchu rulers a little more than a quarter of a century ago when a concerted effort was made to murder every white man, woman and child in northern China.

The boxer uprising has been written into a clever screen story by Peter L. Kyne, one of America's foremost writers. "Mr. Wu" is seen in the role of the American military attaché at the Peking legation.

Claire Windsor, who played opposite McCoy in "The Frontiersman," is seen in the featured feminine role of a lovely young English noblewoman.

The cast includes such screen celebrities as Cyril Chadwick, L. Butt, Frank Currier, Emily Fitzroy, Sojin Kamayama and Frank Chew.

The picture, coming today to the Richmond Theatre, was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, and the scene-

YOUNGEST WAR VET ESCAPES QUENTIN TERM

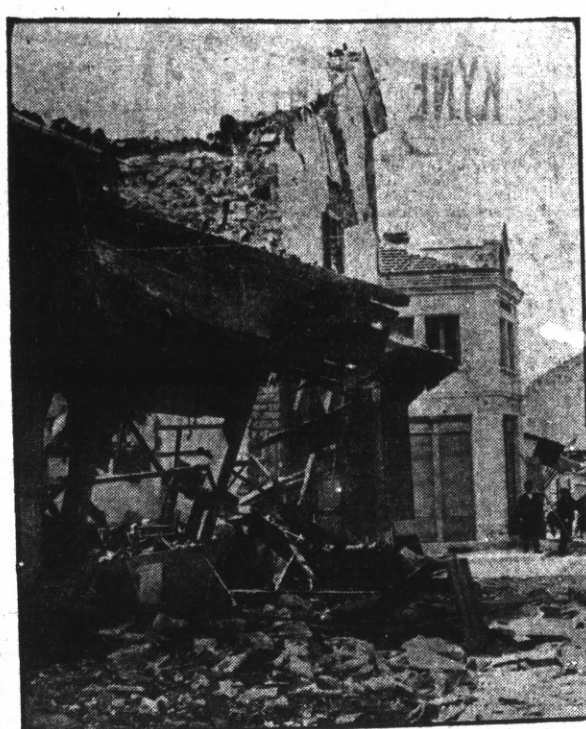

William Nichols, 28, one of the youngest veterans of the World War yesterday escaped a second San Quentin penitentiary term when he pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Glass to a charge of taking an automobile without the consent of the owner and was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail. Nichols, convicted in Orange county and sentenced to San Quentin for automobile theft, escaped a second penitentiary term because of his war record and his addition to the use of liquor being assigned as the cause of him stealing an automobile belonging to H. P. Spencer in Richmond on April 10. Nichols joined the American army when he was 16 years of age and was wounded in France, where he saw service in most of the major engagements in which the American army participated. Nichols and Frank Hickey of Oakland were arrested in Martinez by City Traffic Officer Robert Dukes after Dukes had halted Nichols for speeding. He admitted stealing the car an hour previously in Richmond and volunteered information that he had served a prison sentence for a similar offense. Nichols' statement that he had stolen the machine freed Hickey of a grand larceny charge. The grand larceny charge against Nichols was dismissed and the lesser complaint substituted in Justice court. Authorities made a thorough investigation before filing the minor complaint against him and found that his story of his activities checked out accurately.

Say Delaney Feared Wife Was Doomed

By JAMES W. JENNINGS
NEW YORK, May 8.—Rumors, allegations and unsubstantiated charges that all was not angelic about the Jack Delaney-Jack Sharkey bout in New York last Monday night have simmered down to the admissions that Delaney did not train assiduously before the mill.

George E. Brower of the state athletic commission denied that the commission would investigate the bout because it thought the match highly satisfactory.

Chairman James A. Farley is angry over the reports which say he ordered an investigation, a construction placed upon his words "that the commission would take action if necessary as it did in similar cases."

Farley will have a statement to make after he confers with Commissioner William Muldoon, the third member of the board.

Delaney asserts he never threw a fight in his life, and with his pet lawyer on any man who accuses him of fraud in the ring. Jack promises to spend thousands of rubles to unearth the dishonest party who started the phoneygraph.

about as the truth are rife. Joe Jacobs, Delaney's manager, declared that Delaney entered the ring with no real heart for his work, because his wife, who has been ill for two years, had been operated upon for removal of a growth similar to that which had brought her close to death just before Jack fought Jimmy Maloney, ten days before.

Joe Jacobs refused to make known this fact for fear it might be construed as another libel for the Bridgeporter.

TROJAN CLUB JAPAN BOUND

Looking forward to one of the longest and most interesting jaunts ever taken by a college athletic team, the University of Southern California baseball team is today in San Francisco, awaiting its departure this noon, on the "Tenyo Maru" for a four-months playing tour of Japan, Manchuria and Hawaii.

The Trojans, ably coached by the famous big league veteran, "Wahoo Sam" Crawford, started their 12,000 mile journey Friday when they left San Pedro after getting a tremendous send-off from students, friends of the university and Japanese officials. The last sounds from the shore heard by the Trojan diamond stars were the strains of their University of Southern California Alma Mater, and although their trip will be filled with interesting sights and experience, the strains of their college hymn will doubtless be a welcome sound when the boys hear them early next September upon their return.

Negotiations are now under way for two weeks of games in Hawaii upon their return trip. The team will arrive in Yokohama on May 24 and will play teams in Tokyo from May 25 to June 14. Osaka will be visited from June 20 to July 4 and Manchuria will be the scene of their activities from July 15 to August 1. In the intervening periods, the Trojans will meet teams in other cities and provinces of the Orient.

Yale Kids Move To Present Gift To Champ Tunney

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 8.—Half of the campus was smiling today and the other half was soberly trying to keep the facts under cover in the matter of Yale's proposed gift to Gene Tunney, world's champion heavyweight, as a return for his lecture to the Shakespeare class two weeks ago.

Professor William Lyon Phelps, head of the English department, whose guest Tunney was, collected subscriptions from his class for an edition of the Yale Shakespeare. The beautiful set first autographed by members of the Yale faculty, who edited it.

Then Professor Phelps proposed the members of the class who listened to Tunney were to add their names, before presentation of the gift. The columns were turned over to the class for autographing.

Imagine the professor's dismay when they were returned bearing such insouciantisms as "Johnny Apple Sauce," "Jack Dempsey," "The Duke of Muldoon" and "With the compliments of the author, Francis Bacon."

Professor Phelps announced to the class that the gift had gone awry.

ISTELTON TO STAGE FETE

ISLETON, May 8.—Speed boat racing, parachute jumping from speeding airplanes, baseball games, Japanese wrestling, swimming races are among the features scheduled for the annual Asparagus Festival here, Saturday and Sunday, May 19th and 20th.

The event is sponsored by the Asparagus Festival Committee of the Isleton Chamber of Commerce with J. F. Watson as manager.

In the fertile delta region about Isleton is grown 90 per cent of the world's asparagus crop and for several years Isleton folks have celebrated their principal crop with a gay festival of sports and dancing and other features. Isleton lies along the Sacramento River near its confluence with the San Joaquin and is just a few miles beyond Antioch, Contra Costa county, and is reached via the Antioch highway bridge.

A feature of the annual festival is the great asparagus booth where cooked asparagus is distributed to all who call. It is prepared different ways and is served with various kinds of sauces.

Cooking with a modern Electric Range

Above is a picture of a woman cooking with an Electric Range. How absurd, you say. But not so at all. Her Electric Range with its automatic time and temperature controls is doing the cooking automatically, while she is away from the kitchen.

The dinner placed in the cold oven at one o'clock starts to cook at four. The temperature control keeps the oven heat just right. The current will turn off at six. All this is done electrically, while she is playing cards, motoring or shopping.

Would you like to have the meals cooked while you're away? Over thirty thousand California women let the Electric Range do this for them. Our representative will gladly tell you about the modern electrical way of cooking.

DREDGING OF CHANNEL TO START SOON

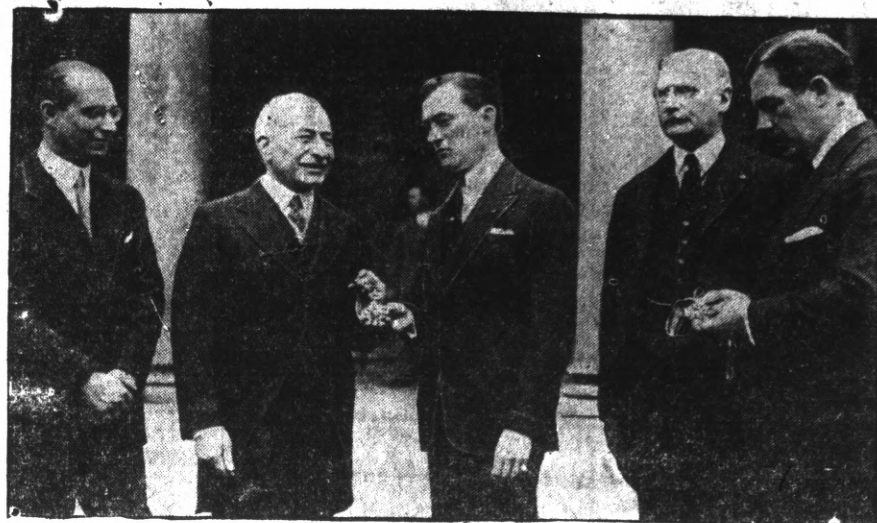

Preparing for an early start of dredging of the San Joaquin river channel, for which appropriations aggregating to $250,000 have been made by the state and national governments, a survey crew of the United States Engineer's office is at Martinez establishing a base line between Pittsburg and Antioch previous to making soundings.

The crew, under Blenhouer, was sent from Rio Vista on the direction of Major C. S. Ridley, United States engineer in this district.

The base line and soundings will cover the area between New York Slough Light, near Pittsburg and Antioch.

A state appropriation of $95,000 for channel development was matched by the federal government. Pittsburg industrialists and business leaders, united with enthusiasm the federal government's commencement of operations in project to widen and deepen San Joaquin bay and San Joaquin river channels. The undertaking, they confidently anticipate, will prove a stimulus to plant expansion and increase along the waterfront area.

History Of Red Cross Bared In Files Of Local Chapter

Yesterday was celebrated by the Red Cross as the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Jean Henri Dunant, founder of the organization. The Richmond chapter has within its files the history of the forming of the Red Cross and the story of Dunant's activities.

In 1862 Dunant, presented to the world an idea conceived in the aftermath of one of history's bloodiest battles, the conflict between Napoleon and Emperor Francis Joseph on the battlefield of Solferino in northern Italy.

Dunant organized at that time peasant women and girls to do volunteer work for the 40,000 dead and dying on the battlefield. He spent three days at this task, and gained for himself the name "The Samaritan of Solferino."

In a pamphlet called "Un Souvenir de Solferino" Dunant said: "Would it not be possible to establish in every country, aid societies, whose aim would be to provide during war, volunteer nurses for the wounded without distinction of nationality; societies of this kind, once created, would be found all ready at the time of war, and by their permanent existence, could also render great service at the time of epidemics, floods, great fires and other unexpected catastrophes." Through Dunant's efforts, the first international meeting of nations to discuss formation of such societies was held in Geneva in 1862 with 15 sovereign states represented. Out of compliment to Switzerland where the first conference was held and Dunant, the Swiss flag, a white cross on a red ground was reversed and became the international Red Cross flag, the red cross upon a field of white.

In convention a year later Dunant's idea was written into the phraseology of an international treaty, the Treaty of Geneva, which created the Red Cross.

Today there are 56 nations bound by the terms of this treaty, each with its national society of the Red Cross. Each society functions independently in its own country; all are joined for concerted humanitarian effort in peace and in war through the international committee of the Red Cross and, with six exceptions, the League of Red Cross Societies. Twenty million men, women and children are enrolled in these national societies under the white banner with cross of red. They are prepared, in event of war, to ameliorate the sufferings of the wounded, they are relieving distress in catastrophe; they are promoting the fundamentals of health; they are building foundations of better international understanding.

In the United States there are four million adults enrolled in the Red Cross and more than six and a half million boys and girls are members of the junior organization. Thirty-five hundred chapters are carrying forward the work of the society.

The services rendered those who suffered in the Mississippi valley floods, in the Florida hurricane, in the hundreds of disasters of the past were living realities of Dunant's idea.

INCREASE IN TUNNEL LIGHT IS PROJECTED

Increasing illumination in the inter-county highway bore is being considered by the Contra Costa Board of Supervisors and the City of Oakland following submission of a lighting plan to the Contra Costa board by W. K. Parker, Oakland street commissioner, yesterday.

The plan submitted by Parker calls for installation of 30 electric lights of 100 watt power each. Installation and equipment cost being estimated by the official at $775. His plan, Parker told the supervisors in a letter would increase tunnel illumination 400 per cent.

With 4 1/2 per cent of the tunnel in Oakland and 5 1/2 per cent in Contra Costa county, 13 of the lights would be installed on the Oakland end of the bore and 17 on the Contra Costa side. Each light, Parker said, could be maintained at a cost of $2.25 monthly.

This would make Oakland's share of the lighting cost $29.25 monthly and Contra Costa's $38.25.

The supervisors expressed themselves as favorable to the plan, but asked that a payment of $20 monthly by the San Francisco-Sacramento railroad in return for a franchise it got years ago to utilize the tunnel for its cars, but which it never exercised, be applied to the Contra Costa payment.

PASSAGE OF DAM MEASURE IS REQUESTED

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Republican party cannot afford to approach the coming national campaign with the further blot of having defeated the Boulder Canyon dam flood protection legislation at the behest of the Washington lobby of the power trust.

Such was the warning served today upon Speaker Nicholas Longworth, Majority Floor Leader Tilson of Connecticut, Chairman Snodgrass of the committee and other Republican leaders of the House of Representatives.

The warning was made by forty members of the House from fifteen states, who demanded a chance to pass the great flood control bill, against which the power trust lobby has raised a $400,000.

Longworth and Tilson sat at the head of the House steering committee, to which the forty representatives made their plea for action on the Boulder Dam bill. They were reminded that the legislation has been before Congress for years and that it has always been denied final action because of filibusters and power trust opposition.

While the Senate has killed it by filibusters, the House leaders have employed an excuse or another to deny the House a chance to pass upon the legislation at all, they were told.

Neither Longworth nor Tilson would say whether the House will be allowed to act upon the bill when the committee hearing closed.

Nothing Takes the Place of a Baby Carriage

Notice the increasing number of baby carriages along Macdonald Avenue as busy mothers do their shopping. Until quite recently happy parents seemed to think: "What's the use of a baby carriage, we'll just take the baby in the automobile?" Lately however, the increased traffic everywhere has made parking space a problem, so that Baby Carriages are once more in demand.

The prices of our splendid line of HEY-WOOD-WAKEFIELD Baby Carriages have advanced some, but are still the most remarkable values in the Bay District on this line.

The beauty of a room depends on its rugs—they have to stand more wear than anything else in your home.

We have selected these fine Axminster Rugs because we know they are the best rugs for the price, both in quality and pattern.
